NEW BOOKS.

CAMERON HALL: A Story of the Civil War. By M. A. C. author of "The Little Episcopalian," "Bessie Melville," etc. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co., 1867.

M. A. C., we learn, is Miss Mary Ann Cruse, of Huntsville, Ala., and "Cameron Hall" is the first of her books we have seen; and although the title of the work-"A Story of the Civil War"-usually prevents any further reading of a book on our part, we in this instance, by an effort, overcame the repugnance, and faithfully and conscientiously read the whole 543 pages of "Caureron Hall." Our objection to novels founded on the facts connected with the civil war, are the same we should have to romances on any other cotemporary historical event. The scenes, events, and characters of the story are all too fresh in our memories. Every statement is instinctively measured by the truth of history; and not only this, but by our individual view of such truth. There is an intuitive running criticism in the mind of the reader, fatal to all envalet de chambre. Familiarity must ever remain antagonistic to all attempts at romance. The child's fancy delights in picturing a world of prinlished, some six or seven dozen of Rollo Books, Beechnut Stories, etc., - the most dreary and unattractive children's books ever known; full of preachments, short stories and long morals. We think, however, we can safely predict a shortlived immortality for the whole tribe of them.

In reading novels big folks are children, and proremoving the wreck of steamer Scotland off Sandy Hook.

But neither of these great masters, we think, would have ventured, so soon after the event, on a description in narrative fiction of the scenes and incidents of a civil war, all the occurrences connected with which perfectly familiar to every one of his readers. It is too soon to treat the subject from an ideal point of view, and realism, for the reasons above given, is fatal to it as a work of art.

schools; but to entitle a picture to admiration, true and lasting, it must show something more than the bare realism of the Pre-Raphaelites, which finds nothing bizarre in the cobbler's judgment, whose acumen exhausted itself in the critical examination of the Papal shoe. A tree, a mountain, figures of animals, and the human face divine, all are susceptible of a variety of treatment in both styles. Rosa Bonneur will paint you a horse, or a dog, or the highland heather, true to nature and to life, while Sir Edwin Landezen's interpretation of the same themes, equally true to life, are yet highly idealized. But what is in itself commonplace, cannot be rendered poetic or beautiful. tiful. A mathematically correct drawing of a house, a wall, a locomotive or a sewing machine, are beautiful, but they are by common consent banished from the domain of the fine arts. shed from the domain of the line arts.

So is it—certainly should be—in the field of literature. The characters of a novel may be very his own color. true to nature, and yet be intolerable. Is it not enough that we must endure stupidity in our daily intercourse with men and women? Are we prepared to have all this ineptitude phonographed, and then be compelled to read it? The more faithfully such characters are drawn—the more life-like the conversation-the worse the book. No amount of unexceptionable morality, virtuous example, and poetic justice, can compensate for this, even though it be all written in excellent English. But if to these drawbacks is superadded, as is not unfrequently the case, a total want of invention, and the book is unredeemed by aught that could relieve the dull monotony of proverbial platitudes, then we have the perfection of the modern moral and religious novel-"The Wide, Wide Worlds,"

"Queechys," &c. To show how difficult a task it is at this time to write either a fair history of the civil war, or a novel bearing upon it, we will mention the case of MARION HARLAND, who recently made the essay in her "Sherbrooke." Herself a Virginian born, but a resident of New Jersey, she was condemned by the Southern press for viewing everything from a Yankee stand point, and by the Northern papers because of her partiality for "rebels."

We do not wish to be understood as applying any of the foregoing remarks specially to "Cameron Hall." We have spoken of the characteristics of the genus, and as belonging to that genus, the book before us must be considered open to the same objections. The onus probandi is with it; and we are happy to say a deal of very good proof has been submitted showing cause why this present book should be acquitted from the severe charges under which it has been brought into court. The language is good, style simple and pleasing, and there is an abundance of mystery. We have two or three secrets running all through the story. The idea of the blind girl Agnes and her sayings and doings is not altogether original; rather a favorite theme of late years with lady novelists. Uncle John is a sort of Squire Allworthy, only found in romances. There is, however, too much talk. The conversations are many, very long, and often pointless. A deep religious tone pervades the whole work; and although there is a total absence of anything like wit or humor, "Cameron Hall" is, nevertheless, a very interesting story, and will be read with pleasure as well as Prussion Prize Money.

WILLIAM, by the grace of God, King of Prussia, on the 16th of November last, decreed that, with the consent of the two Chambers of the Diet, the sum of one million and a half of thalers, to be defraved from the contributions from the several conquered territories, shall be donated to the chiefs of the Prussian army, who have contributed to any remarkable degree to the brilliant results of the late war. The Nord Deutsche Zeitung says that public opinion generally approved of this edict. The French press is very severe on this modern money reward for valor, and denounces it as a direct incitement to plunder. They say that when Napoleon parcelled out the kingdoms of Europe among his generals and the members of his family, it proved more a source of weakness than of strength to him.

SARATOGA

THE WATER OF THIS SPRING IS BELIEVED TO be unequalled by that of any other in the far-famed valley of Saratoga. Its virtues are such as have secured it the high encomiums of all who have used it, possessing, as it does, in an eminent degree, cathartic, diurctic, alterative and tonic qualities.

From SAMUEL HENRY DICKSON, M. D., Professor Practice of Physic, Jofferson Medical College, Phila-delphia, formerly of Charloston, S. C.: PHILADELPHIA, November 15, 1865.

PHILADELPHIA, November 15, 1866.

I have been for a year or more past in the habit of taking the water of the "Excelsior" Spring of Saratoga. Accustomed during the great portion of my invalid life to use the different waters of the several fountains which boil up along that remarkable valley, dependent, indeed, upon them for much of the comfort I enjoy, I am satisfied that the Excelsio: Water is as well adapted as any other among them, if not more so, to the purposes for which they are generally employed. It is very agreeable, strongly impregnated with the carbonic acid, lively and sparkling. * * I can heartly and conscientiously recommend it to all who need a gentle cathartic and diuretic. SAMUEL HENRY DICKSON, M. D. The Water is put up in Pint and Quart bottles, and packed in good order for shipping, Pints in boxes of four dozen each, and Quarts in boxes of two dozen each. All orders addressed to A. R. LAWRENCE & CO., Saratoga Springs, N. Y., or No. 47 Warren street, New York City, will be promptly attended to. Sold also by first class Druggists and Rotels. 6mo January 12

BRATED Toilet Soap, in such universal demand, is made from the choicest materials, is mild and emollient in its nature, fragrantly scented, and ex tremely beneficial in its action upon the skin, For sale by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers. February 7 ATA MODERN MIRACLE !- FROM OLD AND young, from rich and poor, from high-born and lowly, omes the universal voice of praise for HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER. It is a perfect and miraculous article. Cures baldness Makes hair grow. A better dressing than any "oil" or 'pomatum." Softens brash, dry and wiry hair into Beautiful Silken Tresses. But, above all, the great wonler is the rapidity with which it restores GRAY HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL COLOR. Use it a few times, and PRESTO, CHANGE!

the whitest and worst looking hair resumes its youthful beauty. It does not dye the hair, but strikes at the roots, and fills it with new life and coloring matter.

It will not take a long, disagreeable trial to prove the truth of this matter. The first application will do good; you will see the NATURAL COLOR returning every day, and. BEFORE YOU KNOW IT, the old, gray, discolored appearances of the hair will be gone, giving place to lustrous, shining, and beautiful locks. Ask for Hall's Scicilian Hair Renewer; no other article is at all like it in effect. You will find it PLEASANT TO TRY. CHEAP TO BUY. STIRE TO DO YOU GOO! There are many imitations. Be sure you procure the genuine, manufactured only by
